Traditional Animation

Movies and television shows made with traditional animation are also called cartoons. Teams of artists create them one picture at a time.

Thousands of drawings are needed for only a few minutes of animation. Each drawing is a bit different from the one before it. For example, to show a character walking, the first drawing might show the character with both feet on the ground. The next drawing might show the knee with a tiny bend and the foot slightly off the ground. In the third drawing, the knee might be bent more and the foot might be a little farther off the ground, and so on.

To save work and time, artists paint or draw the moving parts of a scene on sheets of clear plastic film. They place a drawing of the parts of the scene that do not move under the clear film. In this way, they do not need to redraw the background in every picture.

Then filmmakers use a special camera to take a picture of each drawing on its background. Each of these pictures is called a frame. The camera records the frames one after another on long strips of film. To make the images move smoothly, twenty-four frames are needed for every second of the film.

Filmmakers can also create animation with figures made of clay or other materials. Instead of drawing thousands of images, they take many photographs of figures set up in a scene. They move the figures slightly between each photograph.

Task 5. Read the article and decide which statement is True (T), or False (F).

Humans have their teenage years and so do cats. In the cat's world, teenage is not always easy.

In humans, difficult teenage years happen between the ages of 18 to 20. However, cats are usually between 6 and 10 months old. For different sexes, behaviors are different. Teenage boys like taking risks. 'Teenage boy' cats often scratch the furniture. 'Teenage girl' cats can attack others even if they live together in the same house.

However, some owners do not know about this. Unfortunately, they sell their cats or give them away when this happens. But if you know, this will help a lot. The number one thing to do is showing love to your cats when they behave well. You can do this by feeding them or giving them more attention. Training your cat is also important. Some cats forget things that they did when they were kittens, such as using their litter tray.

26. Teenage years in cats start from 6 years old.

27. Behaviors between teenage boy cats and teenage girl cats are the same.

28. Expressing love to your cats is the best way to help teenage cats.

29. It is not important to train cats when they are kittens.

30. When cats are in their teenage years, some forget how to use the litter tray.
